Identity

Logo Color Variations

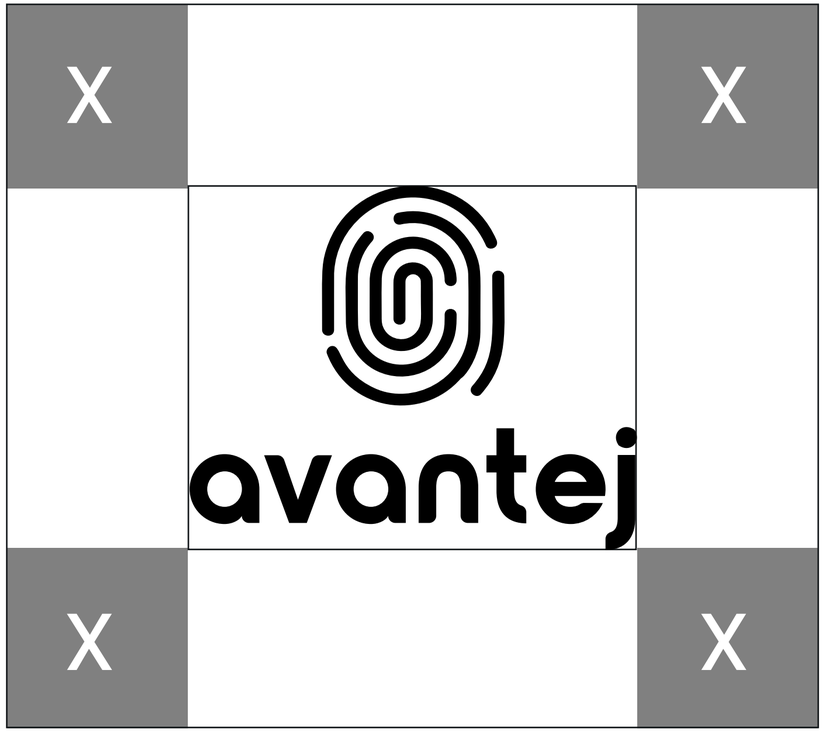

A logo color variation refers to different versions of a brand's logo, each utilizing a distinct color scheme while maintaining the same design and overall visual identity. These color variations are created to provide flexibility in logo usage across various platforms, backgrounds, and contexts.

Logo Spacing

In order for the logo to be clearly legible in the context of surrounding graphics and information, the spacing rules must be followed. No graphic element which is not part of the arcane logo may be placed in the area “x” surrounding it. This area, also called the “area of isolation”. ” is derived by using the Refresh PB logo’s letter height “R” as a unit of measurement.

Iconic Version

An iconic version of a logo is a simplified and highly recognizable representation of a brand's visual identity. It distills the key elements of the full logo into a clear and memorable symbol, making it easily identifiable even at small sizes or from a distance. The iconic version maintains the essence of the brand while providing versatility for various applications and enhancing brand recognition.

Logo Scaling

Logo scaling involves resizing a logo while retaining its visibility and recognition. This ensures consistent branding across various platforms and sizes. Proper scaling maintains a logo's integrity, whether on a small icon or a large banner. It's essential for a cohesive and recognizable brand identity.
